VI. Additional Information

Mid Semester and Final Examinations:

These examinations consist of a combination of multi-choice and short essay questions. The midterm examination will cover material from weeks 1 through 7 inclusive. The final examination will cover material from weeks 9 through 15. It is important to note for the final examination that material from earlier in the semester may be important to revise in order to increase your understanding of the concepts and ideas presented in the latter part of the semester. All material will be covered from class lectures and examples, in-class discussion, the chapters from the text book, and elements of your group project. The examinations will examine not only your knowledge of the material, but also how the theory can be applied in a business sense.

Group Project and Presentation:

Assessment: Report 30%

Objective: Application of marketing concepts and methods to design a marketing program. Your group is to:

Generate a new product concept and develop a marketing program for the new product that you will introduce to the market.

The project will be discussed in class in the first few lectures. This will allow the instructor to provide constructive feedback and also allow the instructor to assist the group with any questions that they may have.

The written report should be no longer than 15 pages (excluding appendices). Standard business reporting style should be used, which includes an executive summary, background, analysis and key recommendations on the marketing tools that should be used for the new product concept. Presentations will be scheduled in week 15.

Group Work:

A key component of the assignments is group work. The optimal size for the group project is 5 people. Each group member is expected to contribute equally to the project. Peer evaluation forms are available from the Instructor at the end of the project should you believe that there is a problem with member contributions. Please approach the instructor at the earliest time if there appears to be a problem arising in the project. A Peer Evaluation will be given at the end of the semester – this may result in loss of grade if contribution is not deemed to be sufficient).

Class Participation

Students are expected to contribute to class discussion. This involves preparing for each lecture by reading the assigned chapter in the textbook and any other assigned additional readings. Think through the topic, think how this relates to the environment which you are familiar, and create your own opinion. The instructor will be calling on each of you to share your ideas with him and the rest of the class. This will form the basis of the class participation mark. Attendance is strongly encouraged, and significant absences will impact the student's participation mark for the course.

Students are required to attend ALL presentations, on time, at the end of the semester. Failure to do so will result in a deduction of their class participation grade (up to 3%).

Class participation grades will also be deducted if their contribution to the group project is deemed not to be acceptable.
